Dear Reader,

This is the first edition of the “ValueLinks Newsletter” – an online publication providing brief reports on major activities and events in and around the International ValueLinks Association. Although we try to be complete and up-to-date, this isn’t easily achieved. If you have interesting news relating to the ValueLinks methodology or the value chain approach in general, be so kind and let us know. We plan to produce two editions per year, the next edition being due in December 2010. Please feel free to share the newsletter with anyone interested in the topic. If you like to be included in the mailing list (or prefer not to receive future editions), write to the editors at info@valuelinks.org.

For any information on the Association, please check our new website: www.valuelinks.org

Andreas Springer-Heinze and Alfons Eiligmann (for the International ValueLinks Association)

1. Trainings and other seminars

“Applying ValueLinks in Practice” Training Seminar in Termez, Uzbekistan
A 5-day ValueLinks training took place in Termez, Uzbekistan, in March 2010 under the title “Applying ValueLinks in Practice - Advanced training for facilitators of VC promotion”. The training applied ValueLinks to just one value chain, fresh fish from aquaculture and artificial lakes, using many practical exercises of VC analysis and strategy formulation. The training was conducted by Andreas Springer-Heinze, Shameer Khanal and Avaz Pazilov (contact: Shameer.Khanal@gtz.de).

ValueLinks Introductory Training Seminar in Kabul, Afghanistan
A five days introductory value links training was held in Kabul, Afghanistan, to the benefit of staff from the GTZ Programme for Sustainable Economic Development. The training was tapping into examples of Afghan value chains like carpets, dry fruits, gemstones, herbs and spices. The training was conducted by Ralf Arning (contact: r.arning@gmx.net).

ValueLinks training in Ethiopia
In the week of 14-18 June 2010, a five day introductory ValueLinks training has been given to a Consortium of Christian Relief and Development Association (CCRDA) member staffs. The trainees are 35 and are spread all over Ethiopia. Afework Y. Germamo and Michael Yohannes conducted the training.
The value chain development approach is spreading fast in Ethiopia owing to the success of prior trials by GTZ and SNV. (Contact: Afework Y. Germamo (bcad@ethionet.et))

Introductory ValueLinks training in Sierra Leone, 21-15 June 2010
The training seminar “Value Chain Promotion in Practice” applied tools for promoting local value chains. After years of unrest, Sierra Leone has relatively weak market structures and therefore is an interesting case for basic VC development in staple food for local consumption. The workshop covered VCs of goat meat, rice, cassava-gari and cocoa. The training was organized and provided by Momoh Lavahun, Joseph Michael and Andreas Springer-Heinze. Another seminar is scheduled. (Contact: momoh-fonigay.lavahun@gtz.de).

Regional Training Seminar on „Promoting tourism products and value chains in Asia”
The first 5-day training seminar on the promotion of value chains in tourism has now taken place in Phuket, Thailand, on 5-8 July 2010, and was conducted by Andreas Springer-Heinze and Klaus Lengefeld, GTZ and Kirsten Focken, National Tourism Organization, Laos. Service value chains and those of tourism in particular, differ considerably from the VCs of physical products. Promoting sustainable tourism requires a special approach linking territorial development (destinations) and market development (tours and hospitality services). Nevertheless, an important source of value-added is in local supplies – from food to handicrafts. It is planned to repeat the seminar - depending on demand. (Contact: Andreas.Springer-Heinze@gtz.de and tourism@gtz.de)

Introductory ValueLinks Training Seminar in Afghanistan
From 14-19 July 2010, a five days introductory a ValueLinks training is given to BDS providers from Northern Afghanistan in Feizabad. Advice to the Ministry of Agriculture, Cattle Breeding and Fisheries (MAEP) of Benin
The Ministry of Agriculture has elaborated strategic orientations for its value chain development policy (PSRSA), based on results of earlier value chain workshops and supported by several consultancy missions. 13 products/VCs have been prioritized along with further 25 value chains identified by private and public stakeholders for having possible processing and/or export potential. However, more in-depth analysis is required (contact: Agnes Gerold, AMGerold@aol.com).

Feasibility mission In Southern Sudan
A new value chain project is in preparation in Southern Sudan, a post conflict country which poses very difficult conditions for market-oriented development. The focus will be on the development of domestic markets for staple grains and other basic foodstuff using the new concept of co-investment into “supply lines”. The feasibility study was prepared by Andreas Springer-Heinze and Arshfod Njenga Ngugi of Kenya (Contact: Manfred.eckert-van@gtz.de).

Project Progress Review in Kenya
A project progress review mission of the GTZ project “Private Sector Development in Agriculture” (PSDA) has taken place in March 2010. PSDA activities proved to be particularly successful in VCs such as potatoes, mangoes and renewable energy. Other donors in Kenya underlined PSDA’s leading role promoting value chain development. The ValueLinks approach is well-recognized in the country. The future design of the PSDA will focus on policy advice, the promotion of best practice models for VC development and a closer integration of the technical and financial cooperation programs of GTZ and KfW. This includes setting up a joint Value Chain Development Fund. (contact: Eberhard.Krain@gtz.de).

- Agribusiness Finance and Economics
The working group elected Stefan Kachelriess (stefan.kachelriess@gtz.de) as their new speaker.

4. New Ideas & ValueLinks Innovations

“Supply lines” in grains and other basic staple food value chains
Value chain mapping for basic food items in low-income countries needs to be complemented by a spatial analysis identifying (potential) production surplus areas, bulking points and main markets as well as the conditions of infrastructure between both ends. Upgrading these VCs implies coordinated private and public investment along the priority “supply lines”. The concept is not entirely new but addresses the constraints to VC development in weak domestic markets (Contact: Andreas.Springer-Heinze@gtz.de).

Quantifying value chains and calculating VC economics
The quantification of VCs in development practice is still deficient. A new effort is currently being undertaken to provide simple data collection methods and services to fill in the gap in data availability. Please turn to Thomas.Breuer@gtz.de for support in micro level economics (profitability of business models) or to Andreas.Springer-Heinze@gtz.de for supporting the quantification of the entire value chain with tools to derive informed guesses of key data.
A good example is a set of enterprise budgets that has been developed by PSDA, Kenya. It can be found on the PSDA and the International ValueLinks Association websites. A synopsis paper comparing all 10 enterprise budgets is under preparation (contact: Eberhard.Krain@gtz.de).

Value Chain Development for Decent Work

GTZ SNRD Africa: Good Practices in Agribusiness Development for Pro-Poor Growth
The GTZ SNRD Africa published a good practice documentation comprising an overview on latest VC development and agribusiness promotion experiences from all over Africa. The document from March 2010 can be downloaded under www.valuelinks.org (direct link here).

Cocoa Livelihoods Program (CLP) in West Africa: Farming can be good business!
The Cocoa Livelihoods Program is an initiative of World Cocoa Foundation in partnership with the Bill & Melinda Gates Foundation, BMZ, 15 enterprises of the cocoa sector, and the Governments of the Partner countries Ghana, Nigeria, Côte d’Ivoire, Cameroon. CLP’s strategy is to strengthen service capacities for better cocoa productivity and quality, marketing efficiency and the competitiveness of diversified cocoa smallholdings. GTZ is responsible for business skills training of around 170,000 farmers in West Africa. To that effect, a curriculum for Farmer Business Schools has been developed. Local partners provide a total of 185 trainers who have started to deliver the training. So far, 500 farmers have been trained. (Contact: Annemarie.Matthess@gtz.de)
